The Ken Gelling Waterloo Region Museum is the largest community-based museum in Ontario, with two indoor galleries and a 180 acre living history exhibit called the ‘Ontario Village’. The museum is open seasonally from May 1 to December 31. The main gallery tells the story of the Waterloo Region from 12,000 years ago to today, and the outdoor gallery showcases local and regional history and travelling exhibitions. In 2002, the museum was named “Waterloo’s Friendly Museum” by Ontario By Bike for providing services and welcoming cyclists visiting their location. The Ken Gelling Waterloo Region Museum is located next to a main street running along Homer Watson Boulevard.

Visit www.kenallengellingmuseum.com for more information.